Statutes

From line 175 to 179:

1. countries. However, no more than two Administrators can come from the same country. ~~The General Assembly has right to decide on exceptional cases.~~ Beside this, three quarts of Administrators must come from organisations members, while at least 50% of Administrators must be of women* and at least three quarters of Administrators must be younger than thirty. The General Assembly has right to decide on exceptional cases.

Reason

We propose moving the phrase "The General Assembly has the right to decide on exceptional cases." to the end of the paragraph so that it applies to the entire section. This adjustment is necessary because exceptional cases may arise in various aspects, including the age and country of origin of potential EC members, the number of people from member organizations, and so on.

Of course, it is essential to strive for the most inclusive composition of the Executive Committee. However, it is equally important to retain the possibility for the General Assembly to respond to exceptional cases when necessary.
